Values, ideas, emotions in words and pictures. Science in the service of practice.

The Department of Psychology at the Warsaw Management University in Warsaw is pleased to invite you to the 4th International Scientific Conference: "Values, ideas, emotions in words and pictures. Learning in the service of practice", which will be held on March 26, 2022.

Dear Sirs and Madams,

Warsaw Management University in Warsaw, Institute of Pedagogy and Psychology, Department of Psychology are pleased to invite you to the 4th International Scientific Conference: "Values, ideas, emotions in words and pictures", which will be held on March 26, 2022 via the MS Teams platform. In the dynamic reality in which we currently function, we have given it the subtitle "Science in the service of practice", which allows us to emphasize the unbreakable bond between the science and everyday life of each of us, as well as to present the interdependence between the areas. We cordially invite representatives of various fields of study to create this cyclical event with us, sharing the theoretical, practical and empirical contexts that enrich the subject of this year's conference.

In times of economic and social transformations and the crisis of existing civilization models, the society needs special support from representatives of science and practitioners of various fields in the redefinition of existing problems, the analysis and interpretation of social reality with the use of classic and contemporary perspectives. Science has a real influence on our everyday life and we would like to emphasize it with the title of our conference. On the one hand, it allows us to analyse it using a variety of descriptive categories. On the other hand, looking ahead, it indicates alternatives, risks or potential opportunities. It is also impossible to discount its significance for human development and improving the quality of life.

After two years of transforming reality through the outbreak of the Covid-19 pandemic, we can now confidently say that the world has changed irreversibly, in a way that is extremely profound and impacting all of us. Science tries to explain, in a way, how our society will adapt to these changes and the slowly developing new world order.

The assumption of our conference is to capture the impact of science on our everyday life, to present practical solutions resulting from its discoveries and development. We would like the conference to be a platform through which, through the scientific analysis of images and words, we will be able to jointly exchange information, opinions and predictions allowing us to understand better the contemporary world.

We strongly encourage you to take an interest in our conference. To facilitate contact with the interested, we provide the following e-mail address:
